ARTS & CULTURE IN PUBLIC SPACE SURVEY
The Arts & Culture in Public Spaces Survey was created to understand how Torontonians feel about participating in arts and cultural activities happening in outdoor public spaces in light of the COVID-19 pandemic. The data presented here will help Toronto Arts Foundation, the City of Toronto and numerous community groups plan for arts activities and events happening in 2020 and 2021.

For the purposes of this survey, public space is defined as parks, streets, civic squares, gardens, sidewalks, beaches and boardwalks unless otherwise specified. This survey is the first in a series taking place over the next several months in order to track changes in behaviour and comfort.

The Arts & Culture in Public Spaces Survey was open from June 17–July 6, 2020.

Thank you to the donors and sponsors of Arts in the Parks, an initiative of Toronto Arts Foundation, who made this survey possible. Your contributions are helping Toronto’s artists prepare for working in public spaces during these challenging times.

METHODOLOGY

Quantitative Research Instrument
Toronto Arts Foundation developed the Arts & Culture Public Space Survey in consultation with the City of Toronto and local arts organizations. The survey was shared through the City’s CultureTO newsletter, Toronto Arts Council bulletins, and partner organizations’ social media, and the survey was open from June 17 to July 6, 2020. Responses were tabulated by Toronto Arts Foundation.
